The art of stopping time

Time - how you spend it

You have to conserve your time, energy and attention

Think carefully about how you invest your time

You have more freedom over your time than you think!

Even if you need to do something, you still have freedom in how you do it

Stop wasting time with distractions

Get more enjoyment out of the present moment

Mindfulness can slow down your experience of time

You need to make better time for yourself

What you get out of your time depends on how you spend it, how much energy you have, and how mindful you are.

To get what you want out of life, you have to conserve your time, energy, and attention.

You need to think carefully about how you're investing your time.

You have a lot more freedom over how you spend your time than you think.

Even when you need to do something, you still have a lot of freedom in how you do it.

You need to stop wasting your time on technological distractions.

Mindfulness can help you get more enjoyment out of the present moment.

Mindfulness can slow down your experience of time, which can enable you to extend it and even stop it.

You need to make better time for yourself.
